Another excellent issue. I particularly liked Peter Infantino's affectionate review of the Magazine of Horror and his summaries of a digest I had never heard of called "Justice Amazing Detective Mysteries." These reviews remind me of the great work of Richard and Everett Bleiler - the bibliographers who actually read every science fiction digest in the 20s and 30s and provided a guide to mostly what to avoid. The only criticism I have of the magazine is that although the fiction pieces were good, but I would concentrate more on non-fiction.

By Steve Alcorn
Another interesting issue of this niche publication for enthusiasts of digest format publication, new and old. Mystery (especially Ellery Queen) and Hoor are the focus of this issue, with review and synopses of classics (especially from the 50s) and new fiction stories as well. If you have fond memories of these classic newsstand digests--and especially if you're a collector--you will enjoy this seies.

Interview with Bill Crider, News Digest, Justice: Amazing Detective Mysteries, Worlds of Fantasy, The Encyclopedia of Science Fiction, Honky Tonk Girl by Charles Beckman Jr., Ellery Queen Selects, Marvel Science Stories, Digest Magazine Checklists, Magazine of Horror, RAWL: Writing for Publication, and fiction by Lesann Berry, Richard L. Kellogg and Joe Wehrle Jr. Includes nearly 100 cover images.
